

Health Sciences Information Service

Number 36

December 2004

What are your information needs?

Whatever your job responsibilities, sometime during this year you will need information -- to treat a patient, evaluate programs or services, educate staff or patients, or for yourself.

If a JCAHO evaluator asked about your access to library services, what would you say?

The Alaska Health Sciences Library, also known as the Health Sciences Information Service (HSIS), was established almost 40 years ago to meet your information and continuing education needs. We are your medical library.

Would one or more of these library services help you?

- Article delivery to your computer
- Research, including literature searches, done by a professional librarian
- Full-text medical journals linked to your PubMed searches
- Computer access to CINAHL, an online index to international nursing journals
- The Red Book, Adams and Victor's Principles of Neurology, or 33 other online medical books
- An online tool for diagnosing emerging infectious diseases
- PubMed training. Do you search PubMed effectively? Do you know how to order full-text articles while searching? We can provide group or individual training.
- Current awareness updates / alerts for your own special interests

Interested? Print this page, check the services you want to know about and fax it back to us at (907) 786-1608. You can also e-mail us at ayhsis@uaa.alaska.edu.

Let us be your genie!

We're coming to see YOU!

Within the next six months, we will be visiting Barrow, Bethel, Dillingham, Juneau, Kenai, Soldotna, Kodiak, Kotzebue, Nome, Sitka, and Valdez. We will meet with key personnel and offer group and individual training or assistance.

We want to hear what your needs are, and how we can help you meet them better. This is our BIG chance to show you some new, exciting resources you can use right now, as well as discuss any concerns in person! Please contact us to ensure we meet you. Sally & Kathy
